Today's Reading

1 Peter 3:15-16

15. but sanctify Christ as Lord in your hearts, always being ready to make a defense to everyone who asks you to give an account for the hope that is in you, yet with gentleness and reverence;
16. and keep a good conscience so that in the thing in which you are slandered, those who revile your good behavior in Christ will be put to shame.

DEVOTIONAL

Look both ways

Hudson and Campbell

Among the dozens of Roman gods was one named Janus, who was known as the god of beginnings, transitions, and passages. As such, he was usually portrayed with two faces: one looking to the past, and one to the future.

The author of Hebrews reminds us that our God is eternal, timeless, and ever-present. Even so, he wants his time-bound people to be more cognizant of where they have been and where they are going. He encourages us to maintain a dual perspective; We look back in gratitude, and we look forward in faith.

Hebrews 11 lists an assortment of God's faithful people, briefly recalling their remarkable challenges and accomplishments. But the lengthy list concludes with the observation that none of those exemplary people saw the Messiah they had been promised. Hebrews 12 portrays that faithful group as an exuberant crowd in a stadium, cheering on believers who are still running the race. As we run toward our Savior at the finish line, we continue what they started.

Some of us fondly dwell on "the good old days" with our past accomplishments. Others have more of a fervent focus on the future, determined to make the most of whatever lies ahead. If we learn to look both ways, the new perspective doubles our reasons for gratitude and makes each new day a meaningful adventure

Since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us... (fix) our eyes on Jesus, the pioneer and perfecter of faith. For the joy set before him he endured the cross. -Hebrews 12:1-2
