Today's Reading

1 Peter 4:7-11

7. But the end of all things is at hand; therefore be serious and watchful in your prayers. 8. And above all things have fervent love for one another, for "love will cover a multitude of sins." 9. Be hospitable to one another without grumbling. 10. As each one has received a gift, minister it to one another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. 11. If anyone speaks, let him speak as the oracles of God. If anyone ministers, let him do it as with the ability which God supplies, that in all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom belong the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen.

DEVOTIONAL

The Soul
Richard Rohr

It is good to remember that a part of us has always loved God. There is a part of us that has always said yes. There is a part of us that is Love itself, and that is what we must fall into. It is already there. Once we move our identity to that level of deep inner contentment, we will realize we are drawing upon a life that is much larger than our own and from a deeper abundance. Once we learn this, why would we ever again settle for scarcity in life? "I'm not enough! That is not enough! I do not have enough!" I am afraid this is the way culture trains us to think. It is a kind of learned helplessness. The Gospel message is just the opposite-inherent power.

There's a popular metaphor about the way we have structured our lives. It tells of how we spend our whole life climbing up the ladder of supposed success and, when we get to the top of the ladder, we realize it is leaning against the wrong wall. I would add: and there is nothing at the top anyway. To get back to the place of inherent abundance, we have to let go of all the false agendas, unreal goals, and passing self-images. It is all about letting go. The spiritual life is more about unlearning than learning, because the deepest me already knows (1 John 2:21) and already enjoys.
