Today's Reading

Luke 1:46-50

46 And Mary said: "My soul exalts the Lord,
47 And my spirit has rejoiced in God my Savior.
48 For He has regard for the humble state of His bondservant; For behold, from now on all generations will call me blessed.
49 For the Mighty One has done great things for me; and holy is His name.
50 And His mercy is to generation after generation toward those who fear Him.

PRAYER LIST

Martha Lewis update..continuing to progress each day. She can use her silverware really well now. She walked 125 feet with her walker. They graduated her from the special room for mealtimes because her swallowing is good. She told her case manager she wanted to get out before the 17th, he said it was a good possibility. Everyone notices how hard she is working. Keep Praying!

Heather Whaley- The Oncologist told her that her cancer is not actively growing and dividing. Her lab work came back showing that her numbers were back up to where she could take her chemo pill again. She will start on her medication again on Monday and hopefully she will tolerate it better this time

Chip Moore- preop Monday, operation 23rd August

Brenda-(David Hogins's sister) to have an operation on neck for bone spurs

Gary Whaley-Is in extremely serious condition at Bryan LGH

DEVOTIONAL

Submit to One Another

In a culture that prizes independence, submission is not a popular idea. Many modern readers bristle when they come to Ephesians 5:22, where Paul says wives should submit to their husbands. However, the command to submit is not just for wives. In this section of his letter, the apostle speaks of submission as a universal obligation and as an expression of reverence for Christ (v.21)

These guidelines are sometimes referred to as the Haustafel, a German word that means "household order." The command of verse 21 serves as a heading for this section of this letter, which runs through Ephesians 6:9 Here Paul describes the roles of wives, husbands, children, fathers, enslaved people, and masters. Paul's goal was to help his readers live Christianly within a social structure of his day. John Stott points out that Paul's directives assume the dignity of womanhood, childhood, servanthood, and equality before God of all human beings.

The apostle describes differences in the roles of husbands and wives, using Christ and the church as a pattern. The guiding principle is the rule of LOVE. He commands husbands to love their wives, "just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her"(v.25). Wives, in turn, respond to this love with voluntary submission. In its proper context, the call for wives to "submit to their husbands in everything" is not demeaning. Husbands are to act as servants to their wives in the same way that Jesus served the church. Rather than ascribing a difference in status between husbands and wives, Paul emphasizes mutuality. Both are dependent upon each other. Each serves the other. Husband and wives are equal in the eyes of Christ (1 Cor. 11:8-12)

Jesus said, "The student is not above the teacher, nor a servant above his master"(Matt. 10:24) If He was not ashamed to take the role of a servant, we should not be reluctant to submit to one another in Love.
